Miami Light Project

Founded in 1989, Miami Light Project is a not-for-profit cultural organization which presents live performances by innovative dance, music and theater artists from around the world; supports the development of new work by South Florida-based artists; and offers educational programs for students of every age. In 2010, Miami Light Project moved into our current arts space – The Light Box at Goldman Warehouse – in Miami's Wynwood Arts District. It is a one-of-a-kind creative space for artists, and an intimate place of gathering for the community where new work is experienced in its various stages of development. It provides a setting in which artists have the opportunity to research and create work, explore their artistic discipline, and hone their unique voices, via extended residencies occurring throughout the year. The Light Box is also a place where audiences are invited into the creative process to gain a deeper understanding of how work is made.
